

The beginning of Jake's Story Plant Adventure

It was a hot sunny day in June. The children met at the end of the street. They were full of energy and noisy. They had already decided what they were going to do. They peered into the mouth of the cave and crept into the darkness. Suddenly there was a sharp crack and a flash of lightning. Slowly they turned around. In front of them was a silver speaking box! "To get the map you had better follow me" Following each other they walked up hundreds of slippery stone steps. They came to an old, rotten door. It opened with a creak and crack...

To be continued.....

